Letter from Abby

Dear Friends and Supporters,

I didn't know where any of this was going. All I knew was God had clearly shown me that this ministry needed to happen, and He was appointing me to do it.

Back in 2012, I thought it would be exciting to get maybe ten abortion workers to leave their jobs in the first year. My expectations were miniscule compared to what God had in store. We started getting calls from about ten workers each MONTH. We launched an Exodus2013 campaign for a mass walkout from the abortion industry that opened the floodgates.

Ten years later, we have now walked 640 abortion workers safely to the freedom, peace, and joy they had been missing. We celebrated this ten-year milestone as the Dobbs decision was announced by the Supreme Court, overturning Roe v. Wade and declaring no constitutional right to an abortion.

I was with several of my fellow Quitters when the decision was announced. The elation was palpable as tears flowed and hugs were exchanged. You can imagine the burden lifted from our shoulders, knowing the thing we once fought for and now fight against was dealt a massive blow. It was healing.

Just over a month after the decision was announced, we lost a special person in our ministry. Peg Salkay, one of our therapists who served as a volunteer counselor for our Quitters, was called home to Jesus. She spent her last days on the phone with Dr. Amanda Willie to ensure her ATTWN clients would be transferred with the utmost care. She loved each of them so much that she knew she could not enter eternal rest until assured they were in good hands. Her joyful, prayerful presence is missed, but her passing is a reminder of what awaits those who love Him.

In 2022, we rejoiced, we grieved, and we settled back into our ministerial work with renewed fervor for the eternal souls at stake and the unborn lives still at risk. We know we are not done yet. Now, as the abortion industry is at its weakest, we will amplify our stories faithfully and fearlessly. We are revving up our Bible studies, group therapy sessions, and discipleship program. We are reaching out to every legislator and government leader in the country to testify to the truth. Not just our truth, but God's absolute truth that He is the Creator and Sustainer of life, and we who once stood in His way are now intent to prepare it.

Thank you for cheering us on with every step and every word spoken. Your support is unmerited but exemplifies the overwhelming grace and mercy of Jesus Christ. Thank you for loving all our Quitters as He does. You may never meet all of them in this lifetime, but when our work is done, we will all have one happy reunion in the next.

Until there are none,

We provided 24 NEW Quitters of the abortion industry with financial aid, resumé and job search assistance, spiritual and emotional support, and welcomed them with Love Boxes loaded with ATTWN goodies and Bibles.

2022 impact

We mailed 19,000 postcards and handwritten cards into abortion clinics encouraging workers to leave their jobs.

We helped our Quitters share their stories publicly nearly 900 times with their eye-witness accounts to shed light on the abortion industry.

In 2022, we launched our monthly Bible studies open to all Quitters and staff via live video conference calls!

We coordinated legal assistance for nine whistleblowers of the abortion industry.

We connected monthly via live video chats with our Quitters for group therapy on our Connect + Care conference calls.

"I was speechless while my mind was racing with thoughts of where this might take us as a country and as women, who would now be out from under the banner that abortion would always be an option. Not anymore! Alternatives become real options now and taking responsibility is a real possibility!"

-Priscilla Hurley,

QUITTER AND ABORTION SURVIVOR

Upon hearing the announcement of the Dobbs decision

We awarded two scholarships for Quitters advancing their credentials in the medical field in honor of the late Dr. Nancy Sandrock.

We provided nearly 1,600 hours of licensed counseling for our Quitters.

We spent 350 hours on sidewalks outside of abortion clinics praying and building relationships with abortion workers.

our impact isn't just felt in 2022.

Our impact extends across the United States and will be felt for generations to come, as lives are spared and abortion workers heal. Since our beginning in 2012, we have helped over 640 abortion workers leave the industry and find healing with ATTWN's assistance from the following states:

We hosted 45 Quitters on healing retreats throughout 2022!

We testified in eight states in support of pro-life legislation.

10 Quitters received financial coaching with our Dave Ramsey-certified financial coach.

27 Quitters participated in filming for the Unthinkable documentary, to be released in Fall of 2023.

We premiered She Was Stronger, a stunning portrait of three Quitters from opposite ends of the United States.

clinics

32 abortion clinics have closed after our workers left those locations.

MORE THAN 640
quitters*

More than 640 workers have left the abortion industry with our help.

We've helped workers from 46 states, including the District of Columbia.

States where we have Quitters

States where we have not had any Quitters yet

* We affectionately refer to our clients as "Quitters," as they have courageously QUIT the abortion industry!

A Tale of Two Quitters

Shelley & Caroline

Two women who barely knew each other, living on opposite ends of the country, shared a past in abortion industry work. They never expected the sisterhood that would give them a future.

Shelley was a nurse at Delta Clinic of Baton Rouge, Louisiana in 2012. She kept the job a secret from her husband Donald, knowing he would disapprove of her working at an abortion clinic. In all fairness, Shelley did not know that it was an abortion clinic until patients started packing into the waiting room on her first day of work. She took a bewildered look around and succumbed to the financial pressure of contributing to her family's needs and hardened her resolve to bring home a paycheck.

Donald followed her to work one day, got his bearings on the situation, and gently but firmly told her she did not have to keep the job. By that time, Shelley was defensive and justified her position by the stability it brought to the needs of their growing children.

But then their bright, handsome 20-year-old son died in his sleep, suddenly and with no conclusive answers as to why and how.

It was devastating, and Shelley's hardened conscience cracked. She knew she could not keep aiding in taking the lives of children after losing her own. She reached out to And Then There Were None on her next morning back at the clinic and walked out the doors forever.

Caroline, a nurse in Ohio, worked comfortably for Planned Parenthood for nearly 15 years. During her tenure with the abortion giant, she earned her Master of Science in Nursing and worked at a referral clinic as a Nurse Practitioner, specializing in birth control methods and sexually transmitted infections.

While employed at Planned Parenthood, Caroline and her husband Scott became parents themselves. The disconnect between the mission of her organization and her employer's lack of understanding for Caroline's wishes as a mother roused questions about Planned Parenthood's true nature. By setting abortion quotas and putting personal obstacles in Caroline's way of motherhood, the scales began to fall.

A newfound curiosity in Jesus Christ set Caroline on a trajectory to eventually resign from Planned Parenthood, the exact month that Shelley began her work at Delta Clinic. She connected with ATTWN for healing resources after hearing Abby Johnson speak at a local pregnancy center banquet.

Though connected through ATTWN, Shelley and Caroline didn't meet until a Phase 3 healing retreat in August of 2021. Shelley, after speaking about her experiences at her previous employment for years, had had a recent decline in her health. She was diagnosed with polycystic kidney disease at age 14 and knew that a kidney transplant would be somewhere in her future, but lymphatic cancer rapidly sped up the urgency. Required injections for cancer treatment led to kidney failure, and dialysis was a daily part of her routine. Donald, knowing how much Shelley needed her ATTWN tribe, accompanied Shelley on retreat where the women became acquainted. Caroline, a quiet observer, saw the number of willing donors among the ATTWN staff and clients and thought surely Shelley would have her kidney transplant match soon, especially after the entire group prayed together for a match for Shelley. Motherhood and a history of work in the abortion industry seemed to be the only thing they had in common.

Shelley had all but given up hope after twenty years of waiting on the transplant list with no match.

But the following month, ATTWN held a Quitters Ball gala event in Dallas, Texas. By a series of coincidences that only God could have orchestrated, the two women and their spouses were seated together. Shelley's friend, former coworker, and fellow Quitter noticed from another table that Shelley was having an allergic reaction to almond residue in her salad. She swiftly brought it to Caroline's attention so that Donald could run to the hotel's vending kiosk for allergy medication, and while Caroline assessed Shelley, they began talking.

Both skilled nurses, they knew not to panic and to keep Shelley talking. Caroline mentioned organ donation and asked Shelley about the process and the requirements for a match. It was then that she found out they shared the same blood type, and that no match had been found. As Donald intervened with allergy medication, Caroline went back to her seat with a seed planted in her mind about organ transplant testing.

Over the next month, she communicated with Donald about the steps she was taking to find out if her kidney was a match for Shelley. Donald, for fear that Shelley's hopes would be disappointed, kept the testing a secret from her.

They matched.

Rather than excitement, Shelley was overwhelmed by something completely different—it was peace.

It took eight more months of pre-operative testing and medical work-up to prepare for the transplant, while Scott, Caroline, Donald, and Shelley became family. Traveling from Ohio to Louisiana for testing, Caroline prepared her kidney to be received by Shelley with some of Shelley's favorite foods and some Cajun cooking. Donald and Scott exchanged corny dad jokes and recipes. Caroline treated her kidney like a surrogate parent, nurturing it and verbally willing it to Shelley in case of emergency or accidental death. As far as she was concerned, the kidney no longer belonged to her but was already part of Shelley. Caroline agonized over how long it was taking but clung to the words of Jeremiah 17:8 for complete trust in God's timing: "They are like a tree planted beside the waters that stretches out its roots to the stream: It does not fear heat when it comes, its leaves stay green; In the year of drought, it shows no distress, but still produces fruit." After enough bloodwork to fill a blood bank, psychological evaluations, 24-hour urine specimen collection, and travel while juggling family, kids, school, and her job, the kidney was ready.

The days preceding the operation were filled with family visits and gatherings, a graduation party, and a turkey neck boil. Caroline experienced Acme Oyster and Café du Monde for the first time. It was all fun and family; Shelley's parents embraced Caroline like a daughter, sharing stories about Shelley's spitfire personality growing up. Shelley's mother said that Caroline's donation restored her faith in humanity. Their ATTWN tribe sisters called in to pray together.

On June 13, 2022, the transplant took place at Oschner Medical Center in New Orleans, Louisiana. While Caroline was in surgery for the kidney removal, Shelley was being prepared for the reception. Shelley recalls waking up halfway through the procedure and muttering something about how long they were taking. She laughed while remembering the scowl on the doctor's face and the sharp command to the anesthesiologist to put her back under.

The transplant was successful, but several weeks of observation were required at an inpatient hospital to make sure Shelley's body did not reject the new organ. Shelley was released earlier than expected, surely due to all that good Cajun cooking her kidney had been primed with before the transplant.

The kidney has a name. Shelley calls it Sharoline. Now, seven months after the transplant, Shelley notes certain changes and peculiarities in her new life with Sharoline.

Before Sharoline, Shelley enjoyed a regular nightcap of whiskey and soda. Caroline doesn't care much for alcohol, and especially not whiskey. With Sharoline, Shelley has lost her taste for alcohol. Shelley doesn't mind the change, however, and appreciates her "clean Christian kidney." She also has a newfound taste for vegetables and craves her mother's concoction of cabbage, potatoes, radishes, and carrots. She's even nicer to Donald...sometimes, she says. Joking aside, Shelley prays daily for Caroline in the words from Proverbs 22:9: "The generous themselves shall be blessed." Her new lease on life has given her ample time to enjoy her new twin grandbabies, who will be moving closer to their grandmother very soon.

For Caroline, there was a brief period of overwhelming sadness after her recovery, which is said to be quite common after organ donations. However, recognizing it on her regular prayer walks with a friend gave a name to her sadness and it passed as quickly as it came. She is embarking on a new journey with her credentials as a FertilityCare Practitioner in the Creighton model of natural (true) family planning. Her convictions for whole-life care did not stop with leaving the abortion industry but continued with abandoning the provision of birth control prescriptions and contraceptive implantations in favor of authentic women's healthcare. She is taking new clients and hopes to establish her own LLC practice.

Shelley and Caroline share an uncommon bond that is profoundly pro-life in every conceivable way. Quitting the abortion industry was just the beginning, and only God could take that tragedy and create something entirely new and beautiful.

Donald and Scott continue to be devoted husbands and fathers and regularly share cringeworthy dad jokes.

The Walls Are Talking ...Even Louder

ATTWN released a new survey in 2022 completed by a substantial sample-size (33%) of actively-engaged Quitters. The results were shocking...even for us.

Quitter Stats:

60%

Almost 60% of former abortion workers saw or experienced targeted racism against patients and staff in their clinics.

30%

More than 30% of former abortion workers are not certified or licensed to perform their job responsibilities.

37%

The abortion industry capitalizes on sex trafficking victims. More than 37% of former abortion workers were certain that some of their abortion patients were being trafficked...and were told not to report it.

60%

After leaving the abortion industry, more than 60% of former abortion workers report nightmares, insomnia, and anxiety directly related to what they have witnessed in the procedure, recovery, and POC (Products of Conception) rooms.

25%

25% of former abortion workers kept their work in the abortion industry a secret from their immediate family members.

67%

67% of former abortion workers said they witnessed or participated in forced abortions on patients.

50%

Many states don't even bother inspecting abortion clinics at all, but for the ones that do, 50% of former abortion workers said they were tipped off prior to inspection dates.

50%

Over 50% of former abortion workers said they were either certain or suspected that abortion services were performed on minors without parental consent in their clinics, and only 17% made the required reports.

25%

Less than 25% of former abortion workers said their clinics' abortion providers had local hospital admitting privileges.

90%

90% of former abortion workers had no in-house counselors nor anyone from corporate to talk to when struggling with experiences in the clinic.

74%

74% of our clients who worked in the abortion industry reported that they witnessed physical, sexual, or verbal abuse of patients in the clinics by staff. Many of these patients were under sedation and unaware of the way they were treated.

68%

More than 68% of former abortion workers are hired on the spot without fully knowing what kind of work they are getting into. Many of them are transitioned from the front office to the back where they witnessed atrocities never advertised by their employer.

30%

30% of former abortion workers said they regularly used expired medications on patients.

25%

Only 25% of former abortion workers said that their clinics provided proper informed consent prior to abortion procedures.

50%

More than 50% of former abortion workers said that staff worked with abortion patients while under the influence of drugs or alcohol. Are you in good hands?

50%

Almost 50% of former abortion workers said that their clinics had set abortion goals or quotas. Of these, 80% said their clinics incentivized abortion with sales bonuses.

Quitters listed their former clinics' human remains disposal procedures, citing medical waste disposal, sales to research laboratories, dispatch to funeral homes per state requirements, freezer storage, incinerators, and garbage disposals in sinks to local water treatment facilities.

20%

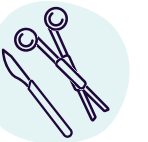

Nearly 20% of former abortion workers reported explicitly being told to take part in illegal activity in the clinic, including scrubbing patient charts, manipulating sonogram measurements, and not reporting sexual assault and/or illicit abortions performed on minors.

66%

Most abortion workers have something in common—history of trauma. 66% of our clients have either been in an abusive relationship or have been abused physically or sexually as a minor. The abortion industry preys on the vulnerable, including their own staff.

40%

Nearly 40% of former abortion workers said their clinics performed abortions past their state's gestational age limits.

87%

87% of former abortion workers said their work negatively affected their home lives and relationships.

33%

Less than 33% of abortion clinics prioritize post-abortion follow-up care, according to our Quitters.

Quitter Quotes:

“Worst decision of my life to work there!”

“I still can't believe I used to rinse the aborted babies down the drain and then turn on the garbage disposal.”

“It's the most traumatic experience of my life and I've had a lot. Even responding to this survey makes me have a weird physical reaction.”

“I don't wish this type of job on my worst enemy.”

“It will always haunt me. I will always feel shame, despite knowing I'm forgiven by Christ.”

SHE WAS STRONGER

We embarked on a filming project at the height of the covid pandemic to produce something beautiful amidst chaos and tragedy. The result was She Was Stronger, directed by filmmaker Sean Schiavolin, which chronicles the lives of three former abortion workers from different backgrounds and regions. Adrienne Moton of Gosnell's clinic in Pennsylvania, Sarah Eubanks of Alabama, and Nallely Perez of California are the stars of the documentary.

The film premiered in late 2022 and is being shown in select cities nationwide. For more information about the film, and how you can support the film tour, please visit www.shewasstronger.com.

Goals FOR 2023

With the abortion industry at its most vulnerable since 1973, now is the time to reclaim our culture of life! We know that abortion workers are on the fence about leaving, but many cite fear and peer pressure as reasons for staying at their jobs, despite the toll it takes on them.

We don't want them to continue suffering silently while abortion workers are 18 times more likely to attempt suicide. In 2023, we plan to:

- ✓ DOUBLE our in-reach into abortion clinics with mailers and collaborative campaigns with Sidewalk Advocates for Life
- ✓ Launch our #Exodus2023 campaign ten years after the first mass abortion industry walkout led by ATTWN
- ✓ Develop and produce a post-abortion healing program specially designed for former abortion industry workers, as more than 30% of our Quitters have had abortions and need healing
- ✓ Engage as many Quitters as possible with our new Discipleship program and spread the Gospel message! THIS IS ALREADY TAKING OFF LIKE WILDFIRE!
- ✓ Certify all Client Managers to become Mental Health Coaches and Mental Health First Responders
- ✓ Provide Health Coaching to Quitters who have experienced the physical manifestations of the abortion industry's effects
- ✓ Onboard additional licensed therapists to supplement the demand for these services
- ✓ Continue engaging Quitters in our monthly Bible studies to edify them spiritually and encourage their relationships with Christ

TO OUR Heroes

Everything you have sacrificially given to this ministry has made an impact on our culture for generations to come. Our Quitters, their children, and their grandchildren thank you for supplying the means to stabilize their families and begin thriving!

With your support, we are able to connect Quitters with life-changing resources:

- Financial Assistance: We don't want anyone to stay in their abortion industry jobs longer than necessary. Sometimes, it's best to resign with no notice. The transitional financial aid helps sustain them for a few weeks, giving ample time to find new life-affirming employment.
- Legal Representation: Quitters have inside information that NEEDS to be exposed, and the abortion industry must be held accountable. We connect them to a legal team who fights for them!
- Employment Opportunities: Our Client Managers are pros at job searching, and our professional resumé writer literally wrote the book on resúms!
- Emotional Healing: Once the dust has settled, Quitters can lean on their Client Managers for emotional support indefinitely. We are always here for them. Dr. Amanda Willie also provides Biblically-based licensed clinical therapy at no cost to our clients.
- Spiritual Support: Quitting is not enough. Jesus is ready to forgive and heal, and our Discipleship program, Bible studies, and regular prayer with Client Managers fosters love and growth in Him!
- Education Scholarships: In memory of the late Dr. Nancy Sandrock, Quitters can apply for scholarships to advance their careers in the medical field to heal rather than harm.
- Speaking Opportunities: When Quitters experience healing, they feel compelled to speak the TRUTH. Our publicist and government outreach coordinator connect them with media training, speaking engagements and representation, and opportunities to provide expert witness testimony in legislative hearings.
- Financial Coaching: As one Quitter said, "I can't WAIT to be done with government assistance!" Quitters are empowered to support themselves and their families through Dave Ramsey-certified financial coaching and achieve long-term goals.

YOU make this possible. Thank you for believing in this ministry and for loving these Quitters out of the abortion industry.
